

January 2010

AktiMate Wins coveted U.K. What Hi-Fi Award

One of the most sought after awards in the global world of hi-fi will always be from the British What Hi-Fi Magazine.

Regarded as the best in the U.K., it is widely read in many countries and more often than not, it is seen to be the magazine that decrees the true worth of a product.

A 5-star review will frequently be the factor which determines whether dealers in the U.K. stock and support a particular product, and whilst the prospect of submitting a product to their review team can be decidedly daunting to manufacturers, the truth is that when you see a 5 star review appear in print, there is no better accolade!

AktiMate Mini first appeared in What Hi-Fi early in 2009 and indeed was the first product to be given an online video review, so taken was the magazine with this great Australian designed product.

We have now gone one step further and received a coveted 2009 award from the magazine.

AktiMate is the What Hi-Fi 2009 Product of the Year in the category Best Desktop Speaker.

Here is the excerpt from the magazine.

BEST DESKTOP SPEAKERS EPOZ AKTIMATE MINI

Epoz is an Australian company that enjoys input from respected British hi-fi company Epos - which helps to make sense of the name.

The left hand speaker is an active design, housing amplification rated at 40 Watts per channel and featuring an iPod dock and both stereo RCA and 3.5mm inputs.

Available in white, black or red, they sound superb, delivering dynamics, details and integration. If you can accommodate them, they are an excellent iPod solution.