

November 2007

AKTIMATE ARRIVES IN STORES

The first shipment of AktiMate speakers arrived in Australia during the second week in November and will arrive in stores in all States during the week of November 19.

Available in both black and white, the entire first shipment is on its way into hi-fi retail stores. A list of the initial AktiMate dealers appears on the Dealer page of the web site. As more dealers take delivery, their details will be added to the list.

AktiMate has its own site - www.aktimate.com

The idea for the product was conceived in Australia and whilst at first glance it may not seem to be all that different from a number of other speakers claiming to do all the AktiMate does, when you hear it you will see where any similarity ends.

It has already gained world interest and co-inciding with its launch in Australia, distributors have been appointed in both the USA and Germany. The global market will expand when more stock becomes available, but right now the demand in the three active markets is such that all production is committed to those markets.